

Thank You

During the past 18 months many clubs have provided generous financial support to the School and to VHUP. These funds have enabled us to purchase much needed equipment, provide financial aid to our students, study specific diseases, and help many of our small animal patients.

Editor's note: The above list was compiled from our records covering the period of July 1984 through December 1985. As it takes time for a gift to be entered into our system, it is possible that clubs which gave in December may not appear on the list. We apologize. These organizations will appear on our next acknowledgement.

Study of Caudal Cervical Spondylomyelopathy Using the CT Scan

A number of dog breeds are affected by Caudal Spondylomyelopathy, commonly called "Wobbler Syndrome." The disorder is most frequently seen in Doberman pinschers and great Danes. Two surgeons here at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine are conducting a pilot study to determine the value of Computed Tomography (CT) scans to increase our understanding of this disorder. Dr. Nicholas J. H. Sharp, a visiting surgeon from the University of Liverpool, England, and Dr. Gail K. Smith, Assistant Professor of Orthopedic Surgery here at the School, have received a small internal grant to help conduct the investigation.

"These funds will enable us to study five Doberman pinschers both before and after they undergo surgery for the condition," said Dr. Sharp. The disease commonly affects middle-aged Dobermans between four and eight years of age, and males appear slightly more susceptible. Dr. Sharp explained that in affected animals the spinal cord is compressed in the neck as a consequence of unstable vertebrae. "Most of these dogs at first show only slight signs," he said. "Their gait may be slightly different, but as the disease progresses, they will become increasingly more uncoordinated. Most dogs are not in pain, although they may become suddenly paralyzed. This is frequently seen when a disc gives way, prolapsing into the neural canal and damaging the spinal cord."

"Treatment is the stabilization of the affected bones in the neck," said Dr. Sharp. "There are many techniques but none are considered ideal." In this study the two surgeons will evaluate the animal by doing a myelogram, this being an x-ray taken where the spinal cord has been outlined with an opaque dye. In addition, a CT scan will be performed which permits a view of the affected vertebrae in cross-section, showing the compression of the spinal cord more clearly than the radiograph. After these two tests, one of the standard surgeries will be performed. "Generally we decompress the disk and then fuse the vertebrae to stabilize the area." The animal will be examined later in the recovery period again employing a myelogram and a CT scan.

"By looking at the condition prior to and after surgical treatment, we hope to ascertain whether the procedure accomplished the goal of reducing the pressure on the cord and stabilizing the affected area of the neck," Dr. Sharp said. "The CT scan allows us a really close and detailed look in a way not used before in this condition and very rarely at all in the dog's spine."

Both surgeons would like to see Doberman pinschers with Caudal Cervical Spondylomyelopathy for this study. There will be no charge for the CT Scan, and it is hoped to be able to obtain more funding to extend the study beyond the present limit of five dogs. Information about the project can be obtained by contacting Dr. Smith or Dr. Sharp at the School of Veterinary Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, 3850 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6008.

Dedication

The cottage adjacent to the Allam House at New Bolton Center was dedicated as Hill Cottage on Dec. 6, 1985, in memory of John J. Hill, III.

Mr. Hill, a dedicated horseman, was master of Nantmeal Hunt Farm, a member of the Radnor Hunt, and vice president of The Devon Horse Show. He was a member of The Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture and the Quaker City Farmers, and a great friend of the School, particularly New Bolton Center.
