1-1-1980

Gleanings From Academic Gatherings
the misuse by archaeologists of Kuhn's The Structure of Scientific Revolutions, Metzler argues that the changes in archaeological method and design of the 1960s "were wholly commensurate with the metaphysics of the previous 'paradigm,'" and concludes that "There has been no revolution in archaeology"—J.R.H.

GLEANINGS FROM ACADEMIC GATHERINGS

Cheiron (June 19-21, 1980, Bowdoin College). Among the papers scheduled to be given is one by F. Neil Brady (Brigham Young University) on "Whitehead's Influence on Radcliffe-Brown."