V. Gradhiva--the fifth number includes articles on the Mission Dakar-Djibouti (B. Caltagirone), on Orientalism and Négritude (M. Richardson), on the notion of the "field" (B. Pulman), on Heraclitus and French anthropology (J.-L. Jamard), as well as several reprints of documents from the interwar period, and news of the various seminars and conferences on the history of anthropology in France. While we will continue to note the appearance of Gradhiva and of its reprints series, it will not be possible, given our limited editorial abilities, to separately note all items of interest in this very important venture; we encourage interested readers of HAN to subscribe.
