RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

Tucker Childs (Applied Linguistics, Portland State University) is preparing short historical sketches of a number of African linguists.

Neil Fligstein (University of California, Berkeley) has won a Guggenheim Fellowship for a study of the “process of Europeanization.”

Daniel Moses (Social Studies, Harvard University, danielmoses36@hotmail.com) is working on an intellectual biography of Lewis Henry Morgan.

Robert Richards (History of Science, University of Chicago) has won a Guggenheim Fellowship for a study of Ernst Haeckel and the battle over evolution in Germany.

Charles L. Vaughn (London School of Economics) is conducting research on the anthropological career of Charles Wisdom (1903-1965) in connection with his own doctoral research on the Maya Chortí of Honduras.

Bennett Zon (University of Durham, Bennett.zon@durham.ac.uk) is writing a book titled “Constructing the Musical Orient in Nineteenth-Century Britain,” which includes an exploration of the early ethnomusiocological work of C.S. Myers within the framework of ethnopsychology and early attitudes toward race.

RECENT DISSERTATIONS

RECENT BIBLIOGRAPHY

[Occasionally, readers call our attention to errors in the entries, usually of a minor typographical character. Typing the entries is a burdensome task, and under the pressure of getting HAN out, some proofreading errors occasionally slip by. For these we offer a blanket apology, but will not normally attempt corrections. We call attention to the listings in the Bulletin of the History of Archaeology, the entries in the annual bibliographies of Isis, and those in the Bulletin d'information de la SFHSH [Société française pour l'histoire des sciences de l'homme]—each of which takes information from HAN, as we do from them. Please note that the format of the bibliography has changed. We will include recent dissertations, recent work by subscribers, and work suggested by our readers in the same bibliography. We continue to welcome and encourage bibliographic suggestions from our readers.]

RECENT AND FORTHCOMING VOLUMES OF HISTORY OF ANTHROPOLOGY

The tenth volume of the History of Anthropology series, edited by Richard Handler, has recently been published by the University of Wisconsin Press. Entitled “Significant Others: Interpersonal and Professional Commitments in Anthropology,” the volume looks at “several kinds of personal relationships that have been important to anthropologists as they practice their craft.” After an introductory essay on “Anthropology’s Other Others,” the volume opens with two essays on the works and lives of anthropological couples: Matthew Engelke’s “‘The Endless Conversation’: Fieldwork, Writing and the Marriage of Victor and Edith Turner,” and Harry G. West’s “Inverting the Camel’s Hump: Jorge Dias, His Wife, Their Interpreter, and I.” There are three essays on various types of relationships between younger and more established professionals: Lyn Schumaker on “The Director as Significant Other: Max Gluckman and Team Research at the Rhodes-Livingston Institute”; Michael Silverstein on “Boasian Cosmographic Anthropology and the Sociocentric Component of Mind”; Robert Brightman on “Jaime de Angulo and Alfred Kroeber: Bohemians and Bourgeois in Berkeley Anthropology.” Focusing on the relationship of an anthropologist to his adopted son, and on his own relationship to his anthropological mentor, George W. Stocking, Jr. writes on “A.I. Hallowell’s Boasian Evolutionism: Human Ir/Rationality in Cross-Cultural, Evolutionary, and Personal Context.” Finally, Joy Rohde contributes “It was no ‘Pink Tea’: Gender and American anthropology, 1885-1903.”

Volume twelve is tentatively planned to examine the uses of biography in the history of anthropology. Scholars who might wish to contribute biographically oriented essays of various types (individual, dyadic, dialogical, collective, institutional, comparative, etc.) as well as essays discussing the uses and theory of biography as applied to work in the history of anthropology, should contact the editor, Richard Handler at rh3y@cms.mail.virginia.edu.
