Your contributions play a critical role in our ability to serve the citizens and animals living in Pennsylvania and beyond. I thank you all for your support, and I hope we can count on your continued investment in the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine for years to come.

Joan Hendricks
Joan C. Hendricks, V’79, GR’80
The Gilbert S. Kahn Dean of Veterinary Medicine
2006-2007 board of overseers

The board of overseers is the advisory body to the dean and faculty of the School of Veterinary Medicine. The board offers Penn Vet a ready panel of professionals, experts and lay people who provide volunteer leadership and financial support to the School. Overseers also serve as ambassadors and spokespersons by linking the School to the world.

Mr. Farish says.

“Great strides in conquering this devastating disease,” horses in the United States suffer from laminitis over the course of their lifetime. Despite its prevalence, the exact cause of the disease remains unknown. Mr. Farish’s gift will support the recently implemented Laminitis Research Initiative at New Bolton Center. “Through Penn Vet’s efforts, we look forward to great strides in conquering this devastating disease,” Mr. Farish says.

In December 2007, philanthropists Marianne and John K. Castle announced a gift of $1 million to support the School of Veterinary Medicine's laminitis research. In speaking about the gift, Mr. Castle said, “Marianne and I are thrilled to be able to support the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine in their research. Our hope is that the knowledge acquired will be important in helping both animals and humankind.”

In addition to funding research in laminitis, the Castles’ gift will support the directorship of the School’s new Laminitis Institute, which will be held by Dr. James Ono.

When fully funded, the institute will include new research laboratories, funding for research projects at Penn Vet, and in collaboration with other institutions, a home-care treatment model, support for student research opportunities, and improved clinical facilities.

Jim Stewart, V‘68 (equine practitioner and surgeon), and Brenda Stewart, V‘70 (small animal practitioner), both have dedicated countless years to Penn Vet in the form of membership in the Development and Opportunity Scholarship committees, and Jim is past president of the Veterinary Medical Alumni Society.

“Giving back to the vet school that first gave me the opportunity to be a veterinarian is the easy part. Being able to find enough funds to help students despite their total average debt loads of $160,000 is the hard part. This giving back assistance should be an unending obligation,” explains Jim.

“An education begins with appreciation and support of all interests and directions of veterinary medicine. It then teaches us reasoning, not reaction, to solve problems, hands-on clinical skills, and researchers’ instincts without doing research. This is a philosophy we must support and maintain.”

Jim and Brenda Stewart welcome all animals, big and small.

* Deceased
I became acquainted with Penn Veterinary Medicine when my dog Punki fell ill with liver disease. On our initial visit to the Matthew J. Ryan Veterinary Hospital, I was overwhelmed by the wonderful care Punki received. Our doctor was not only knowledgeable about Punki’s medical condition, but she never was too busy to take my many calls, explain options and support us when hard decisions had to be made.

When Punki’s condition advanced to the final stage, our doctor and her entire team were waiting for us at the entrance to Emergency Services. They truly cared for all of us during this very difficult and emotional experience. As any animal lover can attest, a pet’s end-of-life process is traumatic, but the acts of kindness offered by the hospital staff had a deep effect on me. That’s when I decided to commit my time and effort to the needs of the Ryan Veterinary Hospital and Penn Veterinary Medicine.

A year later, we again faced a challenging situation with our newly adopted dog, Goliath. This time we sought the services of the Hospital’s Behavior Section, who taught us appropriate training and caring for Goliath. Every member of the team offered us help that exceeded our expectations. They guided us day, night and even on weekends to create conditions safe for Goliath and those interacting with him.

I am proud and honored to be part of the Penn Veterinary Medicine family. They live up to their mission to provide the highest-quality care in conjunction with compassion, support and understanding of both the patient and the client.
