Special Gifts to the School
Throughout Penn Vet’s rich history, we have led the way in advancing veterinary medicine. It is urgent for the public to better appreciate the impact of our profession. In an op-ed for the Huffington Post this spring, I shared how veterinarians approach medicine with a global perspective, supporting public health, playing a critical role in food safety and production, and providing translational research to help prevent and control diseases. While veterinarians will always be needed to heal pets and other valuable animals, it is our ability to link animal science to human well-being, to advance food production and safety, and to provide critical defense from global pandemics that must be better understood in order to advocate for continued public support of the highest level of veterinary education.

As the oldest private veterinary school, Penn Vet has always depended on committed and passionate supporters. In keeping with this history, we set a new bar. During Penn’s successful Making History Campaign, which culminated last December, almost 19,000 alumni and friends gave $134,659,421 in support of Penn Vet and our role in advancing veterinary medicine. I am particularly touched at the impressive level of faculty and staff participation. This record-setting campaign signals your confidence and reflects the importance of Penn Vet’s mission. Concretely, these new funds make possible new student and faculty support, new and improved facilities, and new support for crucial programs. With your help, Penn Vet Leads!

On behalf of everyone at Penn Vet — and the animals and owners we serve — thank you for your phenomenal support.

Joan C. Hendricks, V’79, GR’80
The Gilbert S. Kahn Dean of Veterinary Medicine

“In 2007, Penn Vet’s Ryan Hospital was our last hope after working with our local vet specialists. The care and compassion at Ryan was outstanding and we know that she had the very best care possible. The commitment and compassion shown to us and our pet is something that we have never forgotten.”

28 BELLWETHER FALL 2013
“Whether we have changed career directions or continue to practice some aspect of veterinary medicine, the education we received at Penn and the relationships we developed have shaped our lives in positive ways. A great way to honor those memories is a contribution to a class scholarship fund, to provide support for those aspiring to follow us.”

The Scholarship Program is to honor Charles W. Raker, V’42, the professor and equine surgeon who trained at Penn Vet for future veterinarians and mentoring opportunities. The program was established in 1998 by Opportunity Scholarship Participants. The list of donors and participants is extensive, including notable names in the veterinary profession. The program aims to foster scholarship support and mentoring opportunities for future veterinarians trained at Penn Vet.
“The founder of the University of Pennsylvania, Benjamin Franklin, once asked: ‘What good thing may I do?’ An excellent answer is: Support the School of Veterinary Medicine at his University. I believe strongly in Penn Vet’s mission and the critical work of veterinarians not only in caring for animals, but in ensuring food safety, protecting public health and working to find cures for diseases that afflict humans as well as animals.”

— Bob Huffman, friend of Penn Vet, who supports two Opportunity Scholarships and a key technician position in Dr. Dean W. Richardson’s lab.

The Veterinary Heritage Circle recognizes those benefactors who have provided for Penn Vet’s future through various planned-giving options. Through their estate planning they have created a meaningful legacy for present and future generations of veterinarians, and for the animals they care for. The School extends its deepest gratitude to Veterinary Heritage Circle members for their exceptional generosity, which sustains the School’s tradition of excellence in teaching, research, and healing.

ANNUAL FUND GIFTS & PLEDGES

Fiscal year 2013 marked a healthy year for Penn Vet’s Annual Fund with $1,022,486 in contributions from alumni, friends, corporations, foundations, and organizations. The generosity of thousands of loyal donors allows Penn Vet to maintain its position among the best veterinary schools in the world. We are grateful to these benefactors who believe in and support our work in healing, teaching, and research that benefits animals and humans alike.

Donors to Penn Vet’s annual fund from July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2013 who contributed $250 or more.

VER STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP FUND

Gifts to the Vet Student Scholarship Fund help alleviate some of the financial debt that our students accumulate while receiving their medical training. Any additional scholarship funds help to relieve some of that burden and allow our newly trained veterinarians to enter the profession with less financial constraints.

Penn Vet is extremely grateful to all of our annual fund donors. Unrestricted annual gifts to the University of Pennsylvania’s School of Veterinary Medicine have a tremendous impact on the mission of the School and its two world-renowned veterinary hospitals.
You are invited to join the many alumni, students, parents, clients, and friends who have chosen to be a part of Penn Vet history with the purchase of a Legacy Paver in the Hill Pavilion Plaza.

This is a special opportunity to make a permanent mark on the Penn Vet campus by memorializing a beloved pet, honoring a veterinarian that provided exceptional care, celebrating a reunion class, and more. You can choose to support the area of the School that is most meaningful to you, whether it be Where the Need is Greatest, student scholarship, research, or hospital renovations and facilities.

Share your own story and create a lasting legacy by reserving a paver today in support of Penn Vet’s mission of teaching, research, and service. We hope to announce our New Bolton Center location soon. For more information, please contact Jillian Marcussen, Director of Special Projects, at 215-898-4235 or jillian2@vet.upenn.edu.

“Our dear cat Felix was treated at the Penn Vet Radiation Oncology department and sadly passed away in March. We are so incredibly grateful that he was treated with love and care at Penn Vet. We couldn’t think of any better way to memorialize him and hopefully help other animals at the same time.” – Miranda Brunett and Jason Braman
