

AWARD ANNOUNCEMENTS

2009 FHHS/JHBS John C. Burnham Early Career Award

The Forum for History of Human Science invites submissions for the John C. Burnham Early Career Award for 2009. This award is intended for scholars, including graduate students, who do not hold a tenured position and are not more than seven years past the Ph.D. Unpublished manuscripts dealing with any aspect of the history of the human sciences are welcome. The winning article will be announced at the annual History of Science Society meeting, 18-22 November 2009, in Phoenix, and will be submitted to the Journal for the History of the Behavioral Sciences with FHHS endorsement, to undergo the regular review process; when the article is accepted for publication, the publisher of JHBS will announce the award and issue a US $500 honorarium. Email manuscript and curriculum vitae (PDF format) by June 15, 2009, to weidman@fas.harvard.edu

2009 FHHS Article Award

The Forum for History of Human Science awards a prize (a non-monetary honor) for the best recent article on some aspect of the history of the human sciences. The winner will be announced at the annual History of Science Society meeting, 18-22 November 2009, in Phoenix, and will be publicized in the FHHS Newsletter and in publications of several other organizations (e.g., HSS, Cheiron). Eligible articles must have an imprint date from 2006 to 2008 inclusively, and entries are encouraged from authors in any discipline as long as the publication is related to the history of the human sciences. Deadline: June 15, 2009. If possible, email PDF version of the article to weidman@fas.harvard.edu; or mail three copies to Nadine Weidman, Secretary of FHHS, 138 Woburn St., Medford MA 02155

CORRECTION

The conference on "Empire, Modernity, and the British Social Sciences: 1700-1950," will take place at The University of Chicago