

University of Pennsylvania
ScholarlyCommons

Henry Charles Lea Lectures

The Kislak Center for Special Collections, Rare
Books and Manuscripts

April 2008

Some Modern Approaches to the History of the Crusades

Jonathan S. C. Riley-Smith
University of Cambridge

Follow this and additional works at: <https://repository.upenn.edu/lea>

Riley-Smith, Jonathan S. C., "Some Modern Approaches to the History of the Crusades" (2008). Henry Charles Lea Lectures. 2.

<https://repository.upenn.edu/lea/2>

A lecture presented on 1 April 2008 in the Rosenwald Gallery of the Van Pelt Library, University of Pennsylvania (total time: 1:13:42).

- Introduction, by Edward M. Peters, University of Pennsylvania (0:00)
- Lecture, by Jonathan S.C. Riley-Smith (2:15)
- Question and answer session (55:50)

Jonathan S. C. Riley-Smith is the most distinguished historian of the Crusades in the Anglophone world. He has published fifteen books and hundreds of scholarly articles on all aspects of Crusades history. Riley-Smith is Dixie Professor of Ecclesiastical History Emeritus at the University of Cambridge.

This paper is posted at ScholarlyCommons. <https://repository.upenn.edu/lea/2>

For more information, please contact repository@pobox.upenn.edu.

Some Modern Approaches to the History of the Crusades

Comments

A lecture presented on 1 April 2008 in the Rosenwald Gallery of the Van Pelt Library, University of Pennsylvania (total time: 1:13:42).

- Introduction, by Edward M. Peters, University of Pennsylvania (0:00)
- Lecture, by Jonathan S.C. Riley-Smith (2:15)
- Question and answer session (55:50)

Jonathan S. C. Riley-Smith is the most distinguished historian of the Crusades in the Anglophone world. He has published fifteen books and hundreds of scholarly articles on all aspects of Crusades history. Riley-Smith is Dixie Professor of Ecclesiastical History Emeritus at the University of Cambridge.

Jonathan S. C. Riley-Smith, University of Cambridge

"Some Modern Approaches to the History of the Crusades"

Jonathan S. C. Riley-Smith is the most distinguished historian of the Crusades in the Anglophone world. He has published fifteen books and hundreds of scholarly articles on all aspects of Crusades history.

Riley-Smith is Dixie Professor of Ecclesiastical History Emeritus at the University of Cambridge.