Fiction

Nescio (J.H.F. Grönloh), Amsterdam Stories; Introduction by Joseph O’Neill; Trans. Damion Searls. NYRB Classics, 2012.

In this collection, New York Review of Books has put together some of Nescio’s best known stories about youth and growing up in Amsterdam, painting vivid pictures of the city and its surrounding landscape.

Project Gutenberg's Poems and Ballads of Heinrich Heine, by Heinrich Heine; Trans. Emma Lazarus (1881).

Heinrich Heine was one of the most influential German poets of the 19th century. Heine is most well known for his lyrical poetry, including his poem about the legend of the Lorelei, a siren of the Lorelei Rock on the eastern bank of the Rhine. Project Gutenberg offers free access to Emma Lazarus’s translation of Heine’s poetry (“The Lorelei” can be found in Section II “Homeward Bound,” pp. 58-59).

The Miracle of Bern (Das Wunder von Bern). Universal Pictures Germany, 2004.

Set in post-war Germany in 1954, the plot centers around 11-year old Matthias, a soccer-loving boy whose father has just returned home from war. Alienated by his father, Matthias has found an idol in a local soccer player chosen to play on the German team in the 1954 World Cup in Bern, Switzerland. In this touching story, Matthias reignites his relationship with his father, which coincides with a wonderful, if unexpected, outcome for the German World Cup team.
