

History of Anthropology Newsletter

---

Volume 2
Issue 1 Winter 1975

Article 3

---

January 1975

Obituary: A. I. Hallowell, 1892-1974

Geroge W. Stocking Jr.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://repository.upenn.edu/han>

Part of the Anthropology Commons, and the History of Science, Technology, and Medicine Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Stocking, Geroge W. Jr. (1975) "Obituary: A. I. Hallowell, 1892-1974," History of Anthropology Newsletter.
Vol. 2 : Iss. 1 , Article 3.

Available at: <https://repository.upenn.edu/han/vol2/iss1/3>

This paper is posted at ScholarlyCommons. <https://repository.upenn.edu/han/vol2/iss1/3>
For more information, please contact repository@pobox.upenn.edu.

OBITUARY: A. I. HALLOWELL, 1892-1974

A. Irving Hallowell, Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania, died at his home in west suburban Philadelphia early in October 1974. Past president of the American Anthropological Association, "Pete" Hallowell made outstanding contributions to twentieth-century American anthropology in the study of Algonkian Indians, culture and personality, and the behavioral evolution of man. He was also very much interested in the history of anthropology, and played a major role in the development of that field in the last decade and a half. His own extended essay on "The Beginnings of Anthropology in America" (pp. 1-90 in F. de Laguna, ed. Selected Papers from the American Anthropologist, 1888-1920), gave an important impetus to the history of the discipline when it appeared in 1960, and remains to this day the best general treatment of its subject. In 1962 Hallowell was the guiding spirit behind the Conference on the History of Anthropology sponsored by the Social Science Research Council. He also contributed several other important historical essays in his later years, including "Anthropology in Philadelphia" (in The Philadelphia Anthropological Society, ed. J. W. Gruber, 1967). An account of his own intellectual development appears in Crossing Cultural Boundaries (ed. S. T. Kimball and J. B. Watson, 1972), and a bibliography of his earlier writings is included in his collected essays (Culture and Experience, 1955). I was privileged to be a member of his seminar at Penn in the late 1950s and learned from him how the history of anthropology might be approached in an anthropological manner--an orientation which he later explicitly formulated in an essay on "The History of Anthropology as an Anthropological Problem" (Journal of the History of the Behavioral Sciences, 1965).

G.W.S.

SOURCES FOR THE HISTORY OF ANTHROPOLOGY

Circumstances have prevented us from including an extended discussion of any single source or body of sources this issue; however, we do offer the following shorter items that may interest some of our readers.

Research Materials on Social Science in French Universities

Professor Terry Clark of the Department of Sociology, University of Chicago, author of Prophets and Patrons: The French University and the Emergence of the Social Sciences (Cambridge, Mass., 1973)