

A Letter from the Editor

Dear Readers,

As the interdisciplinary field of Philosophy Politics and Economics (PPE) continues to expand in American universities, our journal has expanded as well. Last year, we rebranded as the Penn Journal of Philosophy, Politics and Economics, communicating a clearer purpose for our publication. This year, we have for the first-time accepted submissions from across the nation, and not just the University of Pennsylvania. We plan on continuing this expansion to position ourselves as the nation's premier PPE journal.

I would like to thank our Associate Director, Dr. Kate Dorsch, for her hard work and passion in supporting the PPE program at Penn. I would also like to thank our Program Coordinator Marissa Tartaglia for her indispensable work behind the scenes in making the department function. I would also like to thank our Director Cristina Bicchieri, without whom none of this would be possible. Finally, I would like to thank my fellow editors Leah Dunbar, Karl Meyer, and Ben Salinger for their tireless work throughout this semester in putting together this publication.

I am proud to present to you this year's edition of the Penn Journal of Philosophy, Politics and Economics. I hope you will find all of the articles as insightful as I did.

Sincerely,

Andrew Liu
Editor-in-Chief
