RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

Jeffrey Feldman (New York University) is carrying on research on Italian physical anthropology from the emergence of Darwinism to the solidification of a fascist racist program, with the working title "Dante's Bones," and a focus on Giuseppe Sergi and his student Fabbio Frassetto, chair of the University of Bologna department of anthropology in the first third of the twentieth century.

Louis Heib (University of Washington), having just submitted for publication an edition of H.F.C. ten Kate's Travels and Inquiries in North America (1885), is beginning research on ethnologists who worked at Hopi from 1879 to 1894.

II. Recent Work by Subscribers

[Except in the case of new subscribers, for whom we will include one or two orienting items, "recent" is taken to mean within the last two years. Please note that we do not list "forthcoming" items. To be certain of dates and page numbers, please wait until your works have actually appeared before sending offprints (preferably) or citations in the style used in History of Anthropology and most anthropological journals]

III. Suggested by our Readers

[Although the subtitle does not indicate it, the assumption here is the same as in the preceding section: we list "recent" work--i.e., items appearing in the last several years. Entries without initials were contributed by G.W.S. Occasionally, readers call our attention to errors in the entries, usually of a minor typographical character. Typing the entries is a burdensome task (undertaken normally by G.W.S.), and under the pressure of getting HAN out, some proofreading errors occasionally slip by. For these we offer a blanket apology, but will not normally attempt corrections. Once again, we call attention to the listings in the Bulletin of the History of Archaeology, the entries in the annual bibliographies of Isis, and those in the Bulletin d'information de la SFHSH [Société française pour l'histoire des sciences de l'homme]--each of which takes information from HAN, as we do from them--although selectively]
