FUNDING OPPORTUNITY

Funding available from the American Philosophical Society

The application deadline for both of these awards is March 1, 2011.

Phillips Fund for Native American Research

The Phillips Fund provides grants for research in Native American linguistics, ethnohistory, and the history of studies of Native Americans, in the continental United States and Canada. The grants are intended for such costs as travel, tapes, films, and consultants' fees but not for the purchase of books or permanent equipment. The committee prefers to support the work of younger scholars who have received the doctorate. Applications are also accepted from graduate students for research on masters theses or doctoral dissertations. The average award is about $2,500; grants do not exceed $3,500. Grants are given for one year following the date of the award.

Library Resident Research Fellowships

The Library offers short-term residential fellowships for conducting research in its collections. We are a leading international center for research in the history of American science and technology and its European roots, as well as early American history and culture.

Applicants may be holders of the Ph.D. or its equivalent, Ph.D. candidates who have passed their preliminary examinations, or independent scholars.

Applicants in any relevant field of scholarship may apply. Candidates who live 75 or more miles from Philadelphia receive some preference. A stipend of $2,000 per month is awarded for a minimum of one month and a maximum of three months.

NEW HISTORICAL RESOURCES

A new online resource is being created for historians of anthropology in Australia, with special emphasis on the network of Baldwin Spencer and F. J. Gillen, whose research was done in the late-nineteenth and early-twentieth centuries. Some features are a bibliography of Spencer and Gillen's works, information about the
