A Legacy...

Mrs. Patricia Bonsall Stuart had a delightful sparkle in her eye and an abiding concern for horses always in her heart. Pat grew up in the Philadelphia area and migrated to Virginia with her husband, Herb. There, she became a noted judge of horses and active member of the Virginia House Council. After Pat moved to Crosslands later in her life, she was a frequent visitor to New Bolton Center for the Friends lectures or other special events.

Mrs. Stuart was involved in New Bolton in its early years and later instrumental in starting the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine. Her deep interest in equine welfare and the advancement of veterinary medicine has now been translated, for the Center, into a generous legacy in support of continued equine studies.

For those not fortunate enough to meet this charming lady, Pat's dedicated commitment to the horse will live on at New Bolton in perpetuity through the continued advances in equine research made possible through her generosity and forethought.
