As an adviser, it's difficult to help students who come in and say, I want to apply to a U.S. university, but now that you know more about who you are, and what you want in a university, it's much easier to advise you. You can get much more out of the conversation. That means that you are now ready to connect with an adviser. Education USA is a U.S. Department of State supported network that can help you with your university search and application process. Education USA is dedicated to helping International students from around the world apply and hopefully attend U.S. universities. Amazingly, Education USA has a huge network of hundreds of centers spread across 170 countries. Where you can go in person, and meet face-to-face with a professional adviser, who's knowledgeable all about the U.S. admissions process. More importantly, the advisers also know about your home country, and about the special needs and considerations that you might have during the application process. They understand you. They understand your background. And they understand your goals. Education USA is the best in-country resource for information and support that you'll have during this process. And we're going to hear from them, next. [BLANK_AUDIO]
